

ARCHITECTURAL DIGEST

Posted January 27, 2017

TEXT BY CARRIE HOJNICKI

SHOPPING

Minimalist Lamps That Are Anything But Boring

Whether you're a minimalist to the core or simply a design lover wanting to pare down your current decor scheme, a sleek lamp is sure to add sophistication to any space. Modern stalwarts Design Within Reach and Hive Modern offer a smattering of iconic choices like the Arco floor lamp from Flos designers Achille and Pier Giacomo Castiglioni or the now famous Pablo Designs Brazo LED floor lamp. If you're looking for a bit more warmth without straying outside the realm of elegant simplicity, there are fine table options from New York-based talents Lindsey Adelman and Apparatus Studio, both beloved by interior designers for their tasteful glows and mod silhouettes. Here, our favorite minimalist lamps for tables, floors, and desks that run the gamut from midcentury to contemporary with a little something in between.

A smaller version of designer Robert Sonneman's 1967 Orbiter lamp, RH Modern's Orbiter II table task lamp features LED lighting and a lacquered burnished-brass surface; $799. rhmodern.com

Photo: Courtesy of RH